

PodBlack Cat

Science, Superstitions and Skeptical Life

Little Kitten – Neuroscience Meets Magic

by PODBLACK on NOVEMBER 3, 2010

Scientific American – Brain scientists Stephen Macknik and Susanna Martinez-Conde explain the science behind the mental manipulations of gentleman thief Apollo Robbins.

YOU ARE WATCHING:

Neuroscience meets magic

Make Me Purr - Click To Tell Others!

Tagged as: apollo robbins, Cool stuff, Links Elsewhere, Little kitten, Magic, Neuroscience, Scientific American, Stephen Macknik, Susanna Martinez-Conde, video, YouTube

COMMENTS ON THIS ENTRY ARE CLOSED.

A SKEPTICAL WOMAN'S SCIENCE, SUPERSTITIONS AND LIFE BLOG

Perth blogger, independent podcast host, educator and writer.

Podblack Cat features blog entries and essays on STEM careers, belief, related gender issues and
research on superstitions and skepticism.

[Young Australian Skeptics
Blog Anthology 2010
Finalist](#)

NetworkedBlogs

Blog:
PodBlack Blog

Topics:
skepticism, women,
science

Follow my blog

RECENT POSTS

[Live-Blogging At The Media And Message
Panel At #TAMoz](#)

[Little Kitten – QED
Vodka \(10:23 Campaign\)](#)

[TAMoz Fringe Podcast
Interviews At Token
Skeptic](#)

[On Education, TAMoz
And The Bent Spoon
For The ACARA](#)

We Are Bonnie Offit!

SAVN At The Skepticator Open Mic Night

[New Token Skeptic
Podcast Eps!
Skepticism, Atheism, Education – Oh My!](#)